Our elections meet at Nashville today to vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

At the theater to-night Ingomar will be put on the boards, with Miss Anderson in the role of "Parthenia."

The fire bells rang out an alarm at 2 o'clock this morning, and the steamers chased each other around town.

During the cold snap numerous water pipes froze, and many an oath was uttered in consequence by occupants of buildings.

The wind shifted around from the northwest to southwest yesterday, and consequently mild and balmy weather was the result.

Another large and fashionable audience greeted Miss Anderson at the theater last night and enjoyed her impersonation of "Meg Merrilies."

The Cotton Exchange is electing officers to-day. Balloting is progressing, but there will be no counting-in or balloting permitted after the polls close.

Candidates for the offices of Aldermen, Councilmen and School Visitors are beginning to move around and feel the municipal pulse, in order to discover how it will beat in January next.

The poor man cannot afford by his vote to increase the taxes of the rich man who rents him the cottage in which he lives. The rich man will increase the monthly rent to pay the increased taxation.

The Market Square keepers of bagnios were arrested on warrants yesterday at the instigation of their neighbors, who desire to force them to either abandon a wicked life or remove to some other locality.

The General Council will assemble at the Court-house to-night in regular monthly session, and will continue to meet at the Court-house until the City Hall is made secure and safe by the engineers.

The Greenville (East Tennessee) Intelligence proposes the name of Judge John M. Carmack, of Memphis, as a candidate for the United States Senate. We do not believe the Judge desires that or any other official position.

How wonderful is the instinct of love that even enables the enamored youth from some remote street corner or from his eyrie in the third story to identify his enlaved's raiments flapping in the free breezes of heaven from some far off clothes-line.

The Court-house inspecting committee will report this afternoon to Chairman Holman, of the County Court, as to the safety or insecurity of the Court-house building. The committee will report favorably, to the effect that the building is all right and safe.

At the Criminal Court to-day the case of the State vs Paul Cicalla, jr., is on hearing on an indictment charging that said Cicalla was guilty of fraudulent breach of trust, of obtaining goods under false pretenses and of larceny while acting as Mayor pro tem. during the yellow fever epidemic of 1873.

Angerona Lodge of Masons, the charter of which Lodge was taken away by Deputy Grand Lecturer Bun F. Price, and which charter was restored to the Lodge by the Grand Lodge of the State, met on last Monday night for the first time since its suspension as a chartered body. The members no doubt rejoiced to meet again, and congratulations were in order.

Last night the denizens of the half-world indulged in a calico ball on Second street, near Madison. It was a recherche affair, participated in by the elite of the half-world and their male friends. Scores of the fashionable young men dropped in to see the ball, and indulged in a waltz, schottish, or promenade with the fair and frail ones. The ball was conducted with decorum and with a view to the proprieties of life.

Charley Brackett's horses, which were stolen by two horse thieves some time since, have been recovered at Helena, Ark., where the thieves were arrested and jailed. The men flourished around this city for several days, and put on no little style, but they were suspected and placed under police surveillance. Hiring two saddle bags at Brackett's they gaily rode out of town and failed to return. They left their valises and other traps at their boarding house, by way, no doubt, of paying their bills, and yet they appeared to have plenty of money.

The Washington No. 4 fire-engine company is one of the best and most efficient in the city. Our fire commissioner visited their engine-house on Main street, North Memphis, yesterday afternoon, and found everything in apple-pie order. An ingenious mechanical contrivance, composed of a bar, a slide and weights keeps the shafts of the hose-carriage up at such a height that the hose can run under them, and in a few seconds it is hitched up and away, the iron bar slipping from the slide the moment the hose-carriage leaves the engine-house.

THE LAW OF ARREST.

The police force unknowingly often violate the law in making arrests. Each policeman is furnished with a manual, and in that manual his duties and the law of arrest are clearly and explicitly laid down. The law of arrest under the Code of Tennessee is as follows:

An arrest may be made either, first, by an officer under a warrant; second, by an officer without a warrant; third, by a private person. An officer may arrest a person, without a warrant, for a public offense or a breach of the peace committed in his presence. If the misdemeanor is not committed in his presence he has no legal right to make an arrest without a warrant. The warrant must be issued by a proper magistrate, specify the name of the defendant if known, and should also state the offense either by name or so that it can be clearly inferred, etc.

An officer can make an arrest without a warrant when a person has committed a felony, though not in his presence, or when a felony has been in fact committed and he has reasonable cause for believing the person arrested to have committed it. When arresting a person the officer shall inform him of his authority and the cause of the arrest and exhibit his warrant if he have one, except when he is the actual commission of the offense or is pursued immediately after an escape.

An officer may break open an outer or inner door or window of a dwelling-house to make an arrest, if after notice of his office, authority and purpose he is refused admission.

If after notice of the intention to arrest the defendant, he either flees or forcibly resists, the officer may use all the necessary means to effect the arrest. Officers must be very cautious in making arrests for felonies without a warrant, for if it afterwards appear that no felony has been committed, their sole defense rests on the reasonableness of the suspicion that led to their making the arrest. Many officers labor under the mistake that they have a right to shoot and kill an escaping prisoner, or one who resists the arrest, when such person is guilty of a misdemeanor. To do so is murder. A prisoner guilty of a felony, who resists arrest or who attempts to escape, may be shot by the officer, provided such act is necessary to secure the arrest or recapture. A felony consists of such a crime, which, upon conviction, would render the person committing it liable to either the punishment of death or imprisonment in the penitentiary. This above is the law of arrest, as known to the Code of Tennessee.

Settled Again.

The test case between Constable Garvey and the police, with reference to the custody of prisoners, has turned out a fiasco. The opinions of the Mayor, City Attorney and Attorney General of the State are, that when a person is arrested by the police on a charge of crime the case is then within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Recorder's court, and no magistrate by issuing a warrant can take such person or prisoner out of the custody of the police. The Recorder is the judiciary of the city, entirely independent of the police department in every respect, and over that court the Police Commissioners have not the slightest control, their control being exclusively over the police and fire departments, and even in these departments their power is limited by charter, and is not supreme.

At 2 o'clock this morning the trestle-work on the Paducah railroad, near the bayou bridge and in rear of Zent's saw-mill, was discovered on fire. The fire steamed repaired to the scene and soon extinguished the fire. The cause of the fire was sparks from the locomotive last evening, which sparks ignited some shavings and lumber that were under the trestle-work. No damage was done to the trestle or track.
